Creative Learning Preschool Expands with New Wheat Ridge Location

-School will host a ribbon cutting ceremony April 12th to celebrate new facility -

Wheat Ridge, Colorado – Creative Learning Preschool, which has been operating a school in the Stapleton neighborhood since 2010, has expanded its reach to Wheat Ridge. The school has opened a newly-renovated facility at 3790 Chase St., offering full-time and part-time day care and educational programs for infants through four-year-olds.

“After two years of searching for the right opportunity to expand our preschool into its second location, we’re excited about the property we found in Wheat Ridge with its growing demographic of young families and a blossoming business community,” said Dan Mitzner, who co-owns Creative Learning Preschool with his wife Rachel Baumel.

The couple is eager to meet demand for childcare and daycare programs in Wheat Ridge, the Highlands and neighboring areas. Their philosophy is focused on providing open communication, a safe environment and a fun and progressive curriculum. Each session of preschool has a balanced schedule designed to address all developmental domains important to a child’s growth and development.

“With four kids, we’ve tried all of the corporate preschools in the area and Creative Learning is by far, the most nurturing, professional and compassionate environment we’ve experienced for any of our children thus far,” said Scott Petersen, a parent with children in the Stapleton facility.

Creative Learning Preschool will celebrate its opening with a ribbon-cutting ceremony on April 12th at 4 p.m. Wheat Ridge Mayor Joyce Jay will attend the event.
